I wouldn't install any software or change anything with your computer until you can tell for sure that the corruption is just the file. Incidental detection of aggressive prostate cancer in patients with benign prostate hyperplasia. To determine the incidence of incidental detection of aggressive prostate cancer in patients with benign prostate hyperplasia (BPH) and to assess the influence of patient age and prostate volume on the diagnosis of aggressive disease. A total of 266 consecutive patients with BPH was evaluated by transrectal ultrasound (TRUS) and serum prostate specific antigen (PSA) determination. Prostate volume and the biopsy findings of the patients were correlated with the histological findings after radical retropubic prostatectomy. The incidence of incidental detection of prostate cancer in our study was 12.5% (32/266) with 7.5% (4/52) of the patients having T1-T2 disease. In the patients with a serum PSA of 10 ng/ml (n = 60) the incidence of incidental detection of aggressive prostate cancer was only 4.7% (4/88) (p = 0.02). Prostate volume was a risk factor for aggressive disease, with a tendency to increase the risk of aggressive cancer with an increase in prostate volume. In patients with BPH the incidence of incidental detection of prostate cancer was 12.5% with half of the cases having a serum PSA of 10 ng/ml, the incidence of incidental
